Reddy Bikes ride throughout Buffalo

By Rebecca Brandel
Co-News Editor

Throughout last year, the Griffin regularly reported on the appearance of red bikes around the Buffalo area.

Reddy Bikes, a new addition to our ever-expanding city, involves bikes that users can rent to take around the city and return to any other rack in the city when they are done. To do this, users pay per minute or sign up for passes from hourly to annually. There is even a group pass that up to four riders to share.

There are racks located on Elmwood Avenue in the Elmwood Village, Allen Street, downtown on Main Street, and at the Broadway Market, Buffalo Museum of Science and Buffalo State College.

This semester, Reddy Bikes have popped up on our campus as well in a rack near the Main Street side of Science Hall, as well as a rack that is currently being installed in front of Old Main. The bikes are here on campus thanks to efforts from senior Senator Clayton Shanahan and sophomore Senator Emily Augugliaro, and the Undergrad Student Association's Sustainability Committee.

In 2015, USA's Sustainability Committee decided that one of its primary large-scale initiatives was to bring a bike share onto campus. As a result, the committee researched several bikeshare organizations and sources and began looking at all options available.

"One of the companies that came up through the research was Reddy Bikeshare, which was also conveniently located in Buffalo and was launching their program in the entire city of Buffalo at the same time that the Committee wanted to launch our own program at Canisius," said Shanahan. "Because of that, we attained funding from USA and created a partnership which lead to the bikeshare launch at the beginning of the 2016-2017 academic year."

In order to get the racks on campus, the committee had to negotiate a contract with Reddy Bikes and get it approved by Dr. Terri Mangione Vice President for Student Affairs.

"To decide where the new rack was going to go, we had to nominate possible options and Reddy Bikes told us which option they thought would be the most beneficial [and] visible. This year, we decided that putting the new Reddy Bike rack in front of Old Main on the quad side would be the best," said Augugliaro.

Through the free Canisius membership, Canisius students can visit the Reddy Bike website (www.reddybikeshare.socialbicycles.com). Once on the website, choose the "Pricing" tab and select the annual membership. At face value, the pass is worth a fee of $55 dollars for the year and $0.60 cents per minute spent on the bike.

After giving your information, make sure to use your @canisius.edu email address. There will be a option to use a promo code; the Canisius promo code is CANISIUS17. Students will still be asked to put their credit card information in because they will be charged a small fee of $0.01 cent for every minute they use the bike. This adds up to $0.60 per hour, instead of $.60 per minute.

Said Augugliaro, "I strongly encourage students to download the app 'SoBi' (Social Bicycles) because you can tell where are the racks are in the city and how many bikes are on each rack, which can help when you need to figure out where to put your bike."

Although Reddy Bike maintenance employees will find your bike and return it to a rack no matter where you lock it up, you will be charged a $2 fee if you lock

Commuter Student Association introduces new assistant program

By Michael Berg
Griffin Reporter

It is no secret that residents of Bosch and Frisch halls at Canisius College each have designated Resident Assistants, or RAs, to help freshmen get acquainted with the college experience and to serve as role models for students. It seems the luxury of having someone show you the ropes of college life is reserved for resident students only, however Canisius' Commuter Student Association (CSA) is about to launch a new program aimed at incoming commuters.

Annalyse Paulsen is a Canisius College junior and the current president of CSA. According to Paulsen, the idea of a program similar to the Commuter Assistance Program is not entirely original.

"Alot of other campuses have it and it's something alot of other presidents have tried to start in the past," said Paulsen.

The program consists of Commuter Assistants, or "CAs", similar Bosch and Frisch's RAs. The CAs' functions include introducing new students to each other at New Student Orientation, sending out e-mails to check up on students throughout the semester, and aiding in creating a community on campus among commuters. If students wanted to carpool, the CA would help to connect students for carpooling. CAs will also be facilitating off-campus meetups.

As for the general structure of the program, students are broken into their own distinct 'pods.' For example, a CA who is from Niagara Falls has students from Lewiston, Grand Island, and the surrounding area in their pod. The commuters are put in groups by proximity so they can get to know each other.

One interesting feature about the Commuter Assistance Program one may not see upon their first glance is the positive contribution it brings to resident life.

"I always think it is cool for the commuters and residents to have a relationship," said Paulsen. "I hope through the CA program, commuters are able to get connected to campus and meet residents as well as fellow commuters."

Paulsen continued, "Since we live in the same area, one thing they can really capitalize on is the greatness of Buffalo and what they have in their own backyard."

PAN-AMERICAN FEAST

Pan-American Exposition Incorporators' Tribute to the First Citizen of Buffalo.

A Distinguished Company, a Notable Dinner, a Magnificent Opportunity for Dear Buffalo, an International Exposition Worthily Started.

THE PAN-AMERICAN banquet tendered His Honor Mayor Conrad Diehl last evening by the incorporators was of a very complimentary character. The guests included many of Buffalo's business, social and professional citizens, and representatives were present from several of the nearby cities and towns.

It was indeed a most auspicious event in the progress that is being made for the future success of the Pan-American Exposition. Messrs. Woolley & Gerrans, two of the most enthusiastic supporters of the project fairly outdid themselves in their elaborate preparations, for the magnificence of the decorations and the completeness and beauty of the service and menu.

Beautiful Banquet Hall.

The two handsome dining rooms of the Iroquois were transformed into a banquet hall, the appropriate decorations being the Stars and Stripes. The long tables glistened with snowy damask, silver, china and crystal were brightened with great clusters of fragrant roses and at each plate was a dainty boutonniere.

The Guest of Honor.

At the head of the table sat Mayor Diehl, the guest of honor, and on his left was John G. Milburn, the eloquent toastmaster of the evening, and Capt. John M. Brinker. On his right sat John N. Scatcherd and Capt. Joseph T. Jones.

Others seated about the festive board were: Carlton Sprague, Charles R. Charles A. Sweet, C. Lee Abell, R. B. Adam, Frank B. Baird, Howard H. Baker, Frank L. Baget, A. J. Barnes, W. G. Barney, Theo. Behind the Scenes

Working with Hein on our Supreme Court of Nevada digital case files project has been a true pleasure.

Our microfilm collection, spanning 137 years of files from 1862 to 1999, needed a partner with proven expertise. We chose Hein, confident in their experience and the strong recommendation from the Virginia State Law Library. Hein delivered exactly what we needed:

- Statewide online access for all Nevadans within HeinOnline
- Indexing by year and docket number
- Keyword searchability

During digitization, we often received urgent requests for specific case files. Hein consistently scanned and returned them within 24 hours, which is a remarkable level of responsiveness.

We deeply appreciate the care, speed, and attention they gave to both our collection and our patrons.
